Rediscover Academic Excellence at Eliot-Hine Middle School

Eliot-Hine Middle School is rooted in the rich history of Washington, D.C. The school is named after Charles Eliot, who served as president of Harvard University and was an advocate for civil service reform, and Lemon G. Hine, Civil Rights Lawyer and politician.

Comprised of grades 6 through 8, Eliot-Hine is a full service school focused on the individual needs of each student. The education at Eliot-Hine prepares students for high school and beyond. Eliot-Hine's motto is home of the eagles, a school soaring towards academic excellence.

“Teamwork...Our children will go far when we all work together. Team is the circle in which we work for the betterment of the whole child.”

– Lolita Ball, 6th Grade Parent

Quality Education Begins with the Educator

Eliot-Hine has one of the most qualified staffs of any D.C. school, and is committed to offering the best academic instruction for your child.

- 100% of Eliot-Hine teachers are state-certified.
- 99% of Eliot-Hine educators hold advanced degrees.

Shaping the Future Leaders of Tomorrow

- Eliot-Hine students participate in the Capital Gains program, part of a quality education provided to all students. It offers special academic programs and accelerated classes for gifted students in multiple academic disciplines, including English/ Language Arts, Pre-Algebra, World History, and Earth Science.
- Eliot-Hine is committed to providing full support for each child. Eliot-Hine houses 3 psychologists, 2 social workers, and staff members who work with students and their families to ensure that students have the academic and social support they need to succeed.
- Students go on to great high school programs, including School Without Walls, Banneker, McKinley Tech, Dunbar Pre-Engineering, Cardoza Trans-Tech Academy, and Phelps.

Continuing Education Outside the Classroom

At Eliot-Hine, the lessons learned outside the classroom are as important as those learned inside. For this reason, the school prides itself on its partnerships with local agencies, business, and cultural centers to take advantage of all Washington has to offer.

Eliot-Hine partnerships include 1st District Police Outreach, D.C. Department of Healthy Families, DC Choices, Project My Time, City Year, Concerned Black Men, National Association of Minority Government Contractors, and a host of neighborhood businesses and clergy, who support our students and programs.

Additionally, the school offers extracurricular activities, including basketball, chess, football, debate team, yearbook, math club, science club, robotics team, track team, and our newest addition, an award-winning step team.

“DCPS has received significant resources over the last two years, enabling us to improve the quality of each and every school. You will find modernized facilities, committed teachers, and comprehensive course offerings, including music, art and technology. With many excellent schools to choose from, we encourage all families to seriously consider DCPS as a good option for their children.”

– Chancellor Michelle Rhee
